

Volunteerism is a Business Strategy

Corporate Community Involvement is about more than feeling good, it's good business!

Join the Leaders: The Bay Area Corporate Volunteer Council

AAA of Northern California

Adobe Systems, Inc.

AngelPoints

Charles Schwab and Co., Inc.

Chevron Corporation

The Clorox Company

CMP

Deloitte

Drafftcb

Electronic Arts

Enterprise Rent-A-Car

Franklin Templeton Investments

Gap, Inc.

Genentech

Hilton San Francisco

IT Ascent

Kaiser Permanente

KPMG LLP

Levi Strauss & Co.

McKesson Corporation

Norcal Waste Systems, Inc.

Oracle

Pacific Gas and Electric Company

Public Policy Institute of California

Robert Half International

Salesforce.com

San Francisco Business Times

Synopsys, Inc.

Wachovia

Walmart.com

Washington Mutual

Wells Fargo

Western Union Financial Services

Our mission:

As leaders in corporate community service, the Bay Area Corporate Volunteer Council (BACVC), through collaboration with local nonprofits, seeks to maximize the positive impact of corporations in the community. To champion corporate involvement, the BACVC provides educational and networking opportunities for businesses and encourages all businesses to leverage their employees' passions, diverse perspectives and skills for the betterment of the community through volunteering.

Does your company have an Employee Volunteer Program? If you're responsible for running it, we can help!

BACVC Membership can help you:

- Maximize your impact through strategic community involvement
- Stay ahead of trends in the field
- Network with your peers across industries
- Benchmark and evaluate your community involvement program
- Identify nonprofits that work well with corporate groups
- Enhance your image as an engaged community partner

The BACVC is a fee-based membership program.

Annual benefits include:

- Access to the special BACVC members-only website, featuring resources, event listings and BACVC member contact information
- Networking and knowledge sharing with other Bay Area corporate volunteer professionals
- Five hours of consulting from The Volunteer Center
- A group referral list to a pool of nonprofits specifically trained to work with groups of employee volunteers
- Regular facilitated meetings on employee volunteer program best practices

Voted CVC of 2007 by the Points of Light Foundation!

Learn more about the BACVC by attending a meeting or speaking to our members. For more information, contact Julia Love at 415-982-8999 Ext 233 or jlove@thevolunteercenter.net.

www.thevolunteercenter.net

volunteer!

Here's What BACVC Members Have to Say:

My experience with the Bay Area CVC has been nothing short of phenomenal. The quality of the programming combined with the collective expertise in corporate volunteer trends makes the CVC events "must-attend" events in my mind. The Volunteer Center staff does an excellent job of keeping us organized and on-topic, and they secure terrific guest speakers to do deep dives into some of the most recent trends in corporate volunteerism. My colleagues do an excellent job of sharing some of their common frustrations, but always follow-up with recommended solutions.

Carrie Varoquiers
Director, Community Relations
McKesson Corporation

As leader of a team responsible for developing and implementing a new company volunteer program, we have come to depend on the Bay Area CVC for quality programming and expert advice with a variety of our programs. The Volunteer Center staff is always available and does an excellent job of providing solutions to complex issues we face. We're on our way to having a first-rate Employee Volunteer Program thanks to The Volunteer Center staff and the Bay Area CVC.

Stephan Phippen
Volunteer Program Supervisor
Pacific Gas and Electric Company

The Bay Area Corporate Volunteer Council is an outstanding resource for Bay Area companies, large or small. As a member of the Bay Area CVC, I have had the opportunity to connect with colleagues, learn best practices in corporate volunteer program management, gain insight into the broader issues affecting our local community, and identify ways in which we as member companies can work to affect positive change. I commend the Bay Area CVC for its leadership and commitment to supporting employee volunteerism.

Carole Lam-Chin
Senior Manager, Global Corporate Citizenship
Oracle

The moment I became involved with community outreach on behalf of my company, I contacted the Bay Area CVC for mentoring, support and advice. Additionally, when anyone asks for advice about Corporate Volunteer activities, the Bay Area CVC is my first recommendation. The Bay Area CVC provides a wide range of expertise at the grassroots, local and national levels. The programming, outreach and collective wisdom of the participants and staff provide counsel for every aspect of community outreach and for every corporate volunteer coordinator – just entering the arena or veteran.

Jo Licata
Community Projects Manager
Hilton San Francisco

www.thevolunteercenter.net

volunteer!